

wick system

Alta Verapaz, Guatemala

This technique is one of the simplest, as it does not require pumps to transport the nutrient solution from the reservoir to the growing trays. Instead, the plants receive the nutrient solution via wicks or wicks.

It can only be used for plants that require little water.

aquaponic

sustainable agricult

water conservation

water management